THE BARWELL BOYS

Centenary of S.A.'s British Farm Apprentices

The idea behind this Centenary Exhibition was conceived at one of Don Best's Barwell lunches in 2011. Elspeth Grant, a historian whose great grandfather Lewis Grant arrived in SA in 1914 on the Orsova, suggested we honour the many farm apprentices who came to SA from 1913-1928, with an Exhibition at the Migration Museum.

Delighted by the suggestion a Committee was formed, made up of the sons and daughters of Farm apprentices, who set to work with enthusiasm. The date was set for June 2013 and the purpose was to honour the contribution made to South Australia by these young boys, some only fourteen years of age. Many stories, both positive and negative, emerged in the course of our research and many new descendants were discovered. The boys faced many challenges – heat, drought, homesickness, isolation and occasionally less than friendly farmers. However many seemed to develop the strength and spirit to survive whatever the new life threw at them – boys, we salute you all.

The exhibition was held at the South Australian Migration Museum, Adelaide and ran from June 2013 to August 2013.

It was opened 15 June by The Hon. G.E. Gago, Minister for Agriculture, Food and Fisheries, Mr James Bruce, AM, JP, Honorary British Consul and Dr Uncle Lewis O'Brien, Kaurna Elder and son of a Barwell boy.

Minister Gago expressed delight in attending the opening event and acknowledged the contribution the boys made. She spoke of South Australia prospering because of the daring and determination of these young pioneers and their decision to travel to the other side of the world, to try something new, to learn, and to contribute to our ongoing great agricultural and primary industries and the profound effect it has had on this state.

The exhibition was also on display at the Royal Adelaide Show and several country shows in areas where the boys worked.

SELECTED LITTLE BROTHERS

are warmly welcomed in

Sunny South Australia

where the population is 98 per cent. British

Harvest Scenes in South Australia.

THE GOVERNMENT co-operates with the BIG BROTHER Movement in safeguarding their interests in every way.

Under the GOVERNMENT'S Scheme of Apprenticeship youthful migrants are assured—

- (a) Continuity of employment with approved employers.
- (b) A thorough training in some branch of primary production.
- (c) The benefits of a subsidised sickness and accident fund.
- (d) An opportunity to qualify for special assistance to establish themselves on the land.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA is a prolific wheatgrowing and woolproducing State, and is the vineyard of the Commonwealth.

SOUTH AUSTRALIAN fresh and dried fruits are unexcelled for quality and flavour.

PARENTS OF LITTLE BROTHERS, ask for and insist on getting products grown by your sons and kinsfolk under the British flag.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA enjoys an unrivalled climate, and the deathrate is one of the lowest in the world.

Assisted Passages from Great Britain are granted in approved cases to persons nominated by relatives or friends resident in the State.

Early in the 20th century thousands of migrants came to Australia to seek a healthy and prosperous new life. Most of them were from the United Kingdom, in line with Australia's "White Australia" policy of the time.

In 1913 the South Australian Government started a youth migration scheme to help meet the state's demand for agricultural labourers. British boys aged 14 and over were invited to become apprentices on SA's farms:

'The great questions for boys to ask themselves are:

- . What is my future in my present job, and
- . What shall I be doing and how much shall I be earning when I am 45 or 50?

If the answer is quite satisfactory and certain, they can well stop here.

If, however, they prefer outdoor life with plenty of good food and splendid prospects, they should consider the question of going out to Australia, where these things await all willing workers.'

Thomas Sedgwick, scheme founder, Britain, 1913

After the First World War (1914–18), the Premier of South Australia, Henry Barwell, visited Britain and re-launched the scheme. The boys who subsequently migrated over the next three years became known as the "Barwell Boys".

'The ideal aimed at is the replacement of the 6,000 South Australian soldiers who were killed in the war ... "The scheme, in a word," says Mr Barwell "is an instalment of practical Imperial reciprocity".'

London Times, 4 March 1922

After a brief break, the scheme resumed for a third and final time in 1927. This time it borrowed an idea from the "Big Brother" youth migration scheme operating interstate. Boys were paired up with a mentor and consequently were known as the "Little Brothers".

In total over 1,750 British boys migrated here as farm apprentices from 1913 to 1929. The schemes ceased for good with the start of the Great Depression.

Mixed Emotions & Mischief

The first group of 81 boys departed London on the SS Beltana on 15 May 1913. The journey to South Australia took about six weeks. Each group was usually supervised by just one man.

'When we left Tilbury of course we were all strangers to each other and you had to make some friendships. We formed teams and we had boxing and things like that... It was just rough stuff but clean. We had quite a lot of fun.'

Jack Drew, SS Balranald, 1923

'During the trip out we asked the cook why we didn't receive as good food as the passengers up in the saloon. He said "Well, they're passengers." "Then what are we?" we asked.

"You're only bloody cargo!"

Alf Dyer, SS Ballarat, 1922

'A lecture this evening for the young emigrants – they were told to develop reliability and forget about town life, pictures and cinemas. 80% of failures in Australia were young men who left the country and drifted back to towns.'

Diary of John Scholefield, boys' 'welfare officer',
SS Balranald, 1924

While for many passengers the journey was the adventure of a lifetime, at the other extreme, one farm apprentice committed suicide en route:

'On his way to South Australia a Barwell boy went overboard ... under circumstances which pointed to suicide... [The boy] lost his father two weeks before he embarked, and was grieving greatly. A watch was kept on him on the ship, as he stated that he wished he were dead.'

Dear Pat

I am having a fine time aboard ship we are nearly out of the channel now. I have made a lot of pals and we have a good time. I got up at 6 o'clock this morning and at 8 o'clock we passed the Isle of White, and the needles at 9 o'clock. We have not had a drop of rain since we left Liverpool. We are going about 20 knots now by the speedometre over the side. I have written to Mum and Dad. We sailed at 5 o'clock yesterday and got out of the Thames in about 2 hours. I don't know when the letters are collected and have no idea when you will get this, but never mind I will send you another from Cape Town. I cannot think of any more.

Your loving Brother

P.S.

(I hope you are getting better quickly, and don't forget to remember me to Ellis next time.)

sight to see.

I am sending this letter from Lake Town, and will send you another from Fremantle when we arrive, sorry I could not send you one before, but I have had time written all the way but I have not had time alone to write and send it.

I must now close writing that you had a happy Christmas & a Happy New Year.

Love & Kisses from

George

P.S. Just write me a long letter in return please.

Dear Mother,

I am now at Fremantle, and our ship's journey from Adelaide so I shall not be long now. It has been a "ard tedious journey but it will not be long before it is over and not one of us will be sorry.

We have had fine weather so far and I think we have been very lucky; the ship has beaten the record of all other ships on the P&O line for the quickest traveling and our highest rate has been 345 miles

Arrival in Adelaide & Dispatch to Destination

The boys stayed at buildings in and around Kintore Avenue, Adelaide, on arrival. Farmers were invited to come and select their own apprentices but for many the trip was too long and expensive, so most employers left the decision to the authorities.

Within 48 hours the boys started another long journey by road, rail and/or sea to their final destinations, as far as Penong in the west, Leigh Creek in the north, through to Port MacDonnell in the south-east.

'We sent for you to come out and help us to develop the country. We desire you to go on the land and eventually to become producers. If you possess the good old British characteristics of pluck and determination, you are sure to make good. You lads are the type Australia wants. You will be treated like sons. Good luck!'

George Laffer, Minister of Agriculture, addressing apprentices upon their arrival, 1922

Hugh Lawson, with a fellow apprentice, at Hindmarsh Island

Immigration Officers Edgar Field and Victor Ryan encouraged the apprentices to write to them about their progress. Ryan had more than 1,000 boys in his care at one time, yet still wrote personal responses to each boy. This earned him the nickname "Daddy Ryan".

'I wish to thank you [Immigration Officer Ryan] for your little advice "if at first you don't succeed, try, try again". I have been very hard tried ... I have never done farm work before and because of that I am getting hustled and shouted at all over the farm.'

William Bourne, apprenticed at Streaky Bay

'[Haydon] did not want it thought he was using "soft soap" in anything he had to say, but his unshaken conviction was that ... the finest move he ever made was when he determined as a youth, barely 19 years of age, to try his fortunes under the boy migrant scheme.'

'A boy migrant: An example of success', The Chronicle, 1 August 1929, about William Haydon, apprenticed at Cherryville

'My life has been a misery to me since I have been here. Several times [the farmer] has threatened to murder me I think he must be mad or out of his mind, no patience and no encouragement whatever so I kindly ask you to take me away.'

Arthur Floate, apprenticed at Booleroo Centre

'Well Sir I have been out here a little over two years and I think it is a wonderfull [sic] country that is as far as farming goes. It is wonderfull [sic] the great machines that are used in wheat farming, such implements as Reapers, Threshers, Binders, Stump Jump Ploughs, Combine Drill and Cultivators, most of which I believe are Australian inventions. Australia from what I can see in the papers recently produces the finest flour in the world, which says some-thing for the man on the land.'

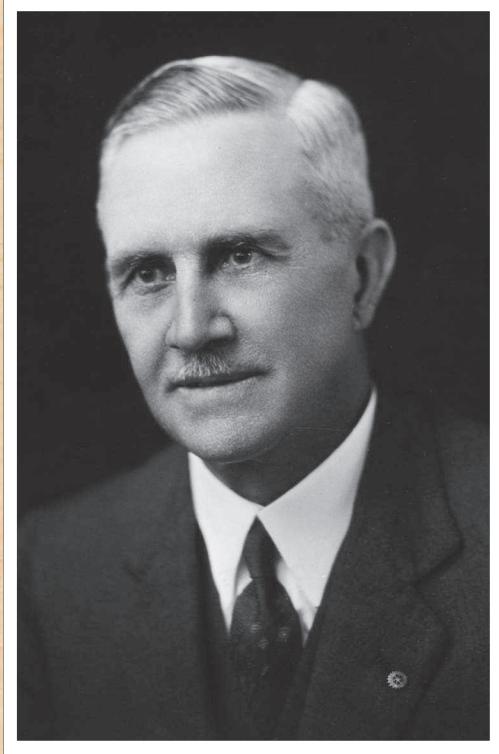

James Clark, apprenticed at Booleroo Centre

'I have arrived at my destination and have found [the host family] very nice people. They are eager to do all in their power to make me feel at home ... I must say that, as a class, the Australians are more hospitable than the English are at home ... there is only myself to blame if I do not get on as I should.'

Geoffrey Ross, apprenticed at Orroroo

'Well I am very glad I came to Australia for I have got a better chance to get on in the World than in London. I am going to nominate all my brothers out here if possible and I have informed a good many of my chums in London to immigrate out here. I hope all the other chaps who came out here with me have fared as well as I. I think farming the healthiest life there is. Once again thanking the Government for what they have done for me.'

'Australia is not the country which we were told it was when we were in England and I think it is very wrong of the Government to bring us lads ... to a country where there is no need for us ... The farmers here ... also think that they (the Govt) must be mad.'

Harry Robertson, apprenticed at Clinton Centre

'[Premier Gunn] said emphatically that the scheme could not be described as the success which some of its sponsors would have the public believe ... Records showed that ... three of them met their death by committing suicide.'

'Barwell Boys scheme "morally wrong" says the Premier: Reasons for discontinuance', The Advertiser, 10 May 1924

'The lad appears to have been very ungrateful and unfair in leaving you at the commencement of harvest, when he could have been of great assistance to you.'

Immigration Officer Field writing to a farmer at Penola

'It is with regret that I have to report this boy cleared out during last night. I had no suspicion that he contemplated any such action – nor have I any idea what caused it.'

Farmer writing about boy apprenticed at Wynarka

'[Kelly was] done to death, it is alleged, by ... a Barwell Boy ... [who] was arrested at Lyndhurst on Sunday, on a charge of inflicting grievous bodily harm. After Kelly's death he was re-arrested on a charge of wilful murder.'

A day in the life of a farm apprentice

'I get up before sunrise and get the horse out of the paddock and feed him. Then I put the horse in the sledge and carry two tubs of water up to the end of the block ... I fill the boiler, light the fire underneath and get it boiling by 7. After that I chop enough wood to last for the day. I then go to breakfast. At half past seven ... I help to load the dip and then go on picking ... 100 buckets a day, which is about a ton of fresh fruit. At 5.10 after [the other pickers] have gone I have to cut lucerne for three horses ... stack the peaches, box 2 or 3 cwt [150 kg] of currants, get in ... wood for morning and do diverse odd jobs. By this time it is dark and when I have had tea and a bath it is bedtime.'

Did the boys become farm owners as intended?

Many completed their apprenticeships and tried to stay on the land. This proved hard to do, especially during the Great Depression.

Others moved to towns and cities; some returned to England. Many joined the Australian defence forces during the First and Second World Wars.

The boys were now men.

Charles Stoerkel, SS Beltana, 1913, apprenticed

During the First World War Lieutenant Stoerkel was twice awarded the Military Cross, for conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty at Messines and Monument Wood, near Villers-Bretonneux. His medals are on display at the Australian War Memorial in Canberra.

Thomas Simpson, SS Benalla 1924, apprenticed at Jabuk - MISSIONARY

Reverend Simpson served as a Methodist missionary in New Guinea. With Japanese invasion imminent in 1941, his daughter and wife Nellie were evacuated. Simpson stayed; his fate is unknown. Nellie gave birth to their only son after leaving New Guinea.

Dease moved to New South Wales, where he became a popular announcer on radio station 2GB. He is best known as host of The Quiz Kids, broadcast nationally from 1942 to 1968.

Joe Rich, SS Benalla, 1923, apprenticed at Lochiel - MAYOR

Rich returned to England during the Great Depression and became Mayor of the Borough of Wenlock in Shropshire. However, Rich was buried at his beloved Lochiel in 1974, as his daughter married a South Australian and her father passed away while visiting here.

Ernest Dear, SS Balranald, 1923, apprenticed at Elbow Hill - AGRICULTURAL LABOURER

Dear was released from his apprenticeship early on the basis that he could "do better for himself". He remained fully employed as an itinerant worker throughout the Great Depression and was known as a champion axe-man. Dear then worked at a Whyalla munitions factory during the Second World War.

A farm apprentice memorial

In 2009 Culburra became the first South Australian community to erect a memorial in honour of a British farm apprentice.

Joseph Smith was one of the first "Barwell Boys" to arrive in South Australia (SS Largs Bay, 1922). He completed his apprenticeship and lived at Tintinara before settling at nearby Culburra.

The community restored a plough that Joe Smith used in the 1930s. This five-furrow light stump jump paring plough was manufactured by SA company Shearers, circa 1910. Originally it was pulled by six horses but Joe operated it with a tractor.

The memorial is located on the Dukes Highway (eastern side of Culburra, opposite a paddock that Joe once ploughed).

5. FAMILY AND FRIENDS

Alec Best (SS Balranald, 1922) and Reg Potter (SS Jervis Bay, 1928) organised the first Barwell Boys and Little Brothers annual reunion in 1975.

The last known farm apprentice, Harold Marlow (SS Moreton Bay, 1924) passed away in 2008, aged 101. In recent years the annual reunions have been attended by the apprentices' families and friends. We have mounted this exhibition to mark the centenary of the first boys' arrival.

Thousands of Australians can trace their ancestors back to the British farm apprentices. The fields of endeavor pursued by them are diverse and some did indeed continue the farming tradition.

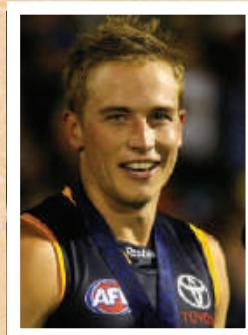

The courage of those young pioneers who migrated to South Australia made it possible.

These descendants reflect on their Barwell Boy forebears.

John Ratcliff, former board member, South Australian Farmers Federation - Son of Ernest Ratcliff, SS Ballarat, 1923

My father was sent here to "cure" him of his farming ambitions but he never returned to England. In 1947 he settled in the South East; our family still owns the originally developed farm. The "Barwell attitude" enabled my father to fulfill his ambitions. Today his grandsons, having gained agriculture degrees at university, are moving forward with scientific ideas and new visions.

Dr Uncle Lewis Yerloburka O'Brien, Kaurna elder
- Son of Ernest O'Brien, SS Balranald, 1923

I believe my father was born in 1907 and came out at age 16. My mother, Gladys Simpson, married him in 1928 and I was born in 1930. He left for England again in 1935. I never knew my father, he left my mum when I was quite young.

For further information see Uncle Lewis's autobiography And the Clock Struck Thirteen (2007).

Bernie Vince, Adelaide Crows footballer
- Great-grandson of Bernard Vince, SS Ballarat, 1923

I am very proud of papa "Pom" for working hard to provide for our family and the success we have today. I'm also proud to be named after him. One of my papa's first jobs was to clear some scrub near Stansbury – a tough gig when your machinery was just a horse and cart.

Visitors Book Comments

"A piece of history I didn't know about." - Pamela Fitzgerald

"I only recently discovered Dad's involvement with this, he spoke to no-one of his experience. Sounds a tough time from the letters of his I have read." - Dianne Morran

"So wonderful to see my great Uncle's involvement." - Sharon Munn

"One of the most honest accounts of Australian history I have seen in the museum. Thank you." - David Clarke

"Long trip from Brisbane to see the exhibition was worth the effort when I found the photo of my dad with Alec Best." - Jean Miller

"Interesting to read and hear the human stories. Too much to take in during one visit." - Jacki & Russell Bellinger from QLD

"Interesting to learn more about what my Grandpa went through in his migration to Australia."
- Damian Cranwell

"It's great to know that many different types of people have been responsible for making our State great, including these boys." - Jane Russo

"A lovely 100 year commemoration to the Barwell Boys including my Poppa Tom Walker. A great exhibition to mark a very important, significant contribution these boys made to S.A."
- Kate & Chris Anderson

"We were so pleased to find out the history, thank you." - Koslowski Family

"What a marvellous display, boy wasn't living different then." - Rosemary Shipway

Some live their lives in cities fair
In realms of pomp and wonder
But here's the truth of those who dare
To win their way Down Under:
Though times were tough and often faced with failure
They won their way, and helped to shape Australia

- Arch Grosvenor, 1983
