BECOME A SA HISTORY GUARDIAN

WWW.HISTORY.SA.GOV.AU

DO SOUTH AUSTRALIA'S HISTORY AND LEGACY MATTER TO YOU?

DO YOU AGREE THAT HISTORY HELPS US MAKE SENSE OF OUR WORLD AND OUR TIMES?

Become one of 50 inaugural SA History Guardians!

The History Trust of South Australia seeks your help to advance our core purposes of collecting, presenting and sharing the significant stories of our state with all South Australians, young and old - and with the world. Since its establishment in 1981, The History Trust has committed to serve the community statewide through our programs.

Across Australia there are public and private agencies dedicated to operating museums, historic houses and heritage properties. What makes The History Trust of South Australia unique is that we are the only statutory authority in our nation dedicated to the broader advancement of history. Our mission is to 'give the past a future - now!'.

Becoming one of 50 inaugural SA History Guardians who generously support our work with a $5000 tax-deductible gift can be a personal act of leadership. Your decision to join us will send a signal to others that our mission is important to South Australia and that it resonates with you.

“I have become a South Australian History Guardian as a proud South Australian who firmly believes in the importance of sharing our legacy locally, nationally and internationally. May The History Trust’s work continue to inspire and share our achievements across time and cultures.”

Above: Australian car manufacturer Holden released the Sandman hoping to capitalise on Australia's sun and surf culture. The HX model was released in 1976 to meet federal requirements of low emission vehicles. The Sandman was available in both panel van and utility models, featuring distinctive pin striping, bold graphics and the 'Sandman' script. HT 2001.0485

Top: 12 square metre heavyweight wooden sharpie Tintara built by champion South Australian sailor, Sir James Hardy and friends for the Melbourne Olympic Games in 1956. Tintara was surveyed by Neil Cormack and was named after the Hardy family's famous South Australian winery. The History Trust's Maritime Museum owns four vessels made and/or raced by James Hardy. They include Nocroo (built when he was 14 years old), Noctoo, and Black Bottle. HT 1987.3094

As part of our 40th birthday celebrations, over the next eighteen months our intention is to raise $1 million towards these activities:

- Give teachers and students in both urban and regional areas improved access to the history of our state so that our history legacy continues to grow;
- Support research and publications through our South Australian History Fund grants and fellowships program;
- Deepen engagement with First Nations truth telling;
- Build our collections with items of historical significance to South Australians that reflect our rich stories and cultural diversity;
- Use digital technology to provide access to our unique collections and resources here and across the world.

The money raised will be used for:

- Collection development, conservation and digitisation
$250,000 from private individuals/ SA History Guardians/ Foundations/ Trusts/ Corporate
- Business case for future Adelaide Museum of South Australia's History (AMoSAH)
$250,000 secured from SA Government

“We humans thrive on connection. History helps us to make sense of our world, our diversity, and what is to come. Our stories, the good and the difficult, need to be understood. As a proud SA History Guardian I hope to see new generations making sense of their time and place here, and discovering more about their fascinating state, through the rich lens of our unique history.”
